ANARCHIST BATTLE.

FURIOUS RIFLE FIRE.

RESIGNED HOUSE IN FLAMES.

POLICE CHARGE DISALLOWED.

DESPERATE FINAL VOLLEY.

CRIMINALS COMMIT SUICIDE.

LONDON, Jan. 3.

The siege of the anarchist tenement in Sidney-street, at the back of the Anarchist Club, in Commercial-road, and Jubilee-street, finished early this afternoon in the burning of the building and the death of all the inmates, six in number, either by their own hand, by the rifle fire of the besiegers, or by the flames.

On Monday night the police attempted to arrest a woman in a house in Sidney-street, but, being fired upon, they withdrew.

The police then attempted to surround the building, and arranged to raid it at daylight, as they hoped to find the Houndsditch fugitives sleeping.

The fugitives, however, were on the alert, and were driven into the attic.

Several other police, who had stopped at the back of the premises, placed ladders in a yard which adjoined a brewery, and attempted to scale the walls.

A fusillade from magazine pistols fired by the anarchists swept the yard, and compelled a retreat.

Detective Leeson, who placed a ladder, was shot in the stomach directly he appeared above the wall. The bullet, which has been extracted, is identical with those used by the Houndsditch burglars. Leeson was taken to the London Hospital.

The police then retreated, but every approach to the building was barred by the anarchists. The police by the middle of the morning numbered 1000 strong.

A party, fully armed, occupied Martin's buildings, opposite the house of the suspects; also the neighbouring roofs, including the Rising Sun public-house.

ATTACKING THE BUILDING.

A DARING CONSTABLE.

BRAVELY RISE THE GAUNTLET.

A number of sheds were also pulled down, so as to better isolate the position.

Furious rifle fire from the police produced a fusillade from the trapped anarchists, who rained shot on the building from different windows.

The Scots Guards from the Tower occupied the ends of Sidney-street, and, kneeling, fired at every opportunity.

Other guards ascended the cooling tower of the brewery, and fired into the attic. Others who were in the yard facing the windows fired from a shelter of barrels of timber, which provided natural loopholes.

Five or six of the fugitives were seen at the windows, and fired alternately, and occasionally in despatching leant out of a window for a hasty shot.

Eventually a policeman borrowed a rifle from one of the Scots Guards, and, despite a fusillade from the fugitives, ran to the house and shattered the lower window with the butt of the rifle.

The fire of the anarchists from the automatic pistols resembled miniature Gatling guns.

Many of the police had marvellous escapes.

END OF THE FUGITIVES.

At 1 p.m. the building was on fire. It is not known whether the outbreak was caused by a rifle.

Half an hour later a rattling fire was directed into the building with a view of drawing the besieged, but they did not reply, and the windows and brickwork were demolished.

As the flames rose men were seen on the roof. They fired indiscriminately on the military.

The spreading fire was accompanied by loud explosions.

When the roof collapsed the firemen extinguished the fire, and the building had been gutted late in the afternoon the ruins were searched, when the bodies of two men, hardly recognizable, were found.

One was removed, but a portion of the building fell, burying the second, and in doing so killed three men, one critically. Other casualties also occurred.

Detective Leeson, it appears, was shot in the chest, and his condition is not serious. A sergeant in the Scots Guards was shot in one of the hands, and a policeman was wounded in the head. Three civilians also received wounds in the head.

The police are satisfied that the two principals wanted in connection with the murder of the three policemen at Houndsditch perished in the fire.

The police detained several persons found in the lower portion of the building before the siege.

A force of hospital nurses was in readiness.

Mr. Churchill, the Home Secretary, arrived at noon, and, during the evening, he visited the house, subsequently he was persuaded to seek shelter.

HOW THE FIRE OCCURRED.

A rumour that Mr. Churchill ordered the house to be burned is authoritatively contradicted.

The police are convinced that the fire was due to the fusillade of bullets cutting the gaspipes, or that it is more likely that the anarchists set fire to the premises to avoid capture.

In regard to the two bodies found, there are indications that one deceased committed suicide.

TRACING THE SUSPECTS.

POLICE IN MANY DISGUISES.

LONDON, Jan. 4.

The police were convinced throughout that the assassins were in hiding in the neighbourhood of the lodging of Morant.

The anarchist who was shot in the street with the police at Houndsditch.

The officers, disguised as shoebucks, Jewish pedlars, and street hawkers, were watching day and night, and terrible evidence was soon forthcoming. By secret observations from empty apartments and from manufacturing premises they located suspicious-looking foreigners.

The police were laid with the utmost secrecy. Other tenants were quietly removed yesterday without alarming the suspects.

A curious coincidence is that Beron, the foreign miser, who was murdered on Clapham Common, lived in Jubilee-street. The landlady in Sidney-street pointed out to the police the front room on the first floor where the suspects were hiding.

Newspapers comment upon the fact of the police refraining to rush them forthwith. The police preferred to wait day-long, and probably instructions from their superior officers, in view of the fact that at Houndsditch darkness favoured the miscreants.

Five comrades and a doctor who were assisting to remove Detective Leeson, who was shot, were subjected to a hot fire.

STEAMER AXIN FOUNDERS.

LONDON, Jan. 4.

Wreckage of the steamer Axin, which was 20 days overdue on the voyage from London to West Africa, has been discovered. The place of discovery shows that she foundered in the Bay of Biscay.

The Axin, registered at Liverpool, was a steel screw steamer, 2304 tons, built in 1894 at Harrow by J. & W. Naval Construction and Armament Co., Ltd. She was owned by the British and African S.S. Company, Ltd. (Messrs. Dempster and Co., Ltd., managers).

The actual area of the conflict, were filled with onlookers, mostly women and children of Semitic type. It is a miracle that the errand-rushing bullets, many of which were fired at an angle, inflicted such little injury.

Dummy soldiers, at one window and another, were hoisted on a stick in other instances drew the fire of the anarchists, the soldiers almost simultaneously responding at the one moment. Scores of police offered to rush the building, but Mr. Churchill, the Home Secretary, forbade it, as he was unwilling to jeopardize life.

A bullet struck a colour-sergeant of the Scots Guards on a shin while he was kneeling in the street. He was surgically treated and limped back to his position in the firing line.

SURVIVORS COMMIT SUICIDE.

A section of the Royal Horse Artillery at St. John's Wood was summoned in order to demolish the house with artillery, and a party of the Royal Engineers at Chatham was summoned to execute sapping and mining operations, but their services were not required, as the fire solved the difficulty.

The theory is that the besieged started the fire, realising that their case was desperate, and they were determined to destroy the evidence of their organisation.

There was breathless excitement when at a quarter past 1 o'clock the fire engine arrived. They were not permitted to attack the building, but were waiting for the fire to spread.

It was evident at half past 1 o'clock that the premises would be gutted. The approaches to the house were cleared, and the soldiers and police lined up. Then there was a sudden, heavy burst of firing. An anarchist, unable to withstand the heat of the pursuing flames, appeared behind the broken glass pane of the front door. Instantly the rifles flashed. The occupants of the house opened fire from the front door. Almost simultaneously the spectators heard two shots fired in rapid succession within the house. It was apparent that the besieged at that moment committed suicide, otherwise they would have fled.

The crowd showed their sympathies with the police by cheering lustily on with the fate of the miscreants.

The firemen then began their work of extinguishing the fire, after which search was made for the bodies.

The bodies, arms, and legs of one body are missing, and the skull was found separately.

The "Daily News" protests against any possible attempt to identify the East End aliens as a class with desperadoes such as this gang of Letts, who are a problem by themselves. The prize money is £250, of which £100 is for the winner. The race will be run on Saturday next at 2.30 p.m. on the card for the Rosebery Handicap.

Trainers and jockeys entitled to admission to the saddling paddock at Rosebery on Saturday next can obtain the necessary tickets at the office of the J.A.C. up to 5 p.m. to-day. Additional nominations for the principal handicaps of the A.J.C. autumn meeting were notified yesterday from Auckland (N.Z.). Those for the Doncaster Handicap are Grampian, Krenegier, King Broke, and Rhoads, and for the Sydney Cup, Bridge and Grampian. The total now are—Doncaster Handicap, 138; and Sydney Cup, 99. The nominations of Krenegier, King Broke, Grampian, and Rhoads at Auckland is due to the fact that their trainer, Frank McGrath, of Kensington, is at present on a visit to New Zealand. Bridge, who was nominated for the Sydney Cup, is the property of the New Zealand sportsman, Mr. E. J. Wait, and is by The Possible from Scotia. He is a good performer in his native land.

The following race meetings have been granted registration by the A.J.C.—Lockhart, Pat. R. Day Race Club (March 15); Bertie Jockey Club (February 11); Tully Jockey Club (January 20); Spring Ridge Jockey Club (February 11); Coffs Harbour Jockey Club (January 11); Litchford Jockey Club (January 11); Binalong Racing Club (February 7); and Nannan Race Club (February 4).
